

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Fabricated excavator teeth comprising projections cut from hard, highly abrasion steel plate or bar stock, for example having a Brinell Hardness exceeding 225, and as high as 400 or higher, welded to cores through which the teeth may be connected with excavator apparatus, including any kind of digging implement, such as buckets and ripping arms, and any kind of excavating machine, such as power shovels, backhoes and dredges.